

Felina's scrawls 10

Well.... What do we have..... we have got a whispering priest with a (ssst!) book... Lispering Louis that will be :-). To cover up this secret (sh-sssht) mission we have a merchant (Goya) with a bodyguard (Bruno) and a bimbo (Rebecca) and there is a half-elven alchemist (Paul)

Reed blends in as a servant of the merchant while I blend in as the second bimbo.... The rest of us acts as guards..... maybe because they are. There were votes to have Nethander as backup guard, some miles behind. Although I dislike the plan, he is out there somewhere.

There are beneficial secondary terms of employment also. I got to wear the perfumes Goya is selling. And maybe I can learn some dancing from Rebecca. And somehow it does not feel like working.

We got 200 gold up front and another 800 at delivery. Some of it is gone to party supplies already.

Apparently this mission is not so secret as we might think. Giant birdlike creatures are following us as soon as we leave town.

That night two rogues raid us. The impressive part is, they were able to summon a giant skeleton. And the impressive part of the skeleton was its aura what made your arms turn against yourself.

Fortunately Reed and I studied a spell which gives protection against such an evil.

Cuura and Bruno fought the skeleton. I was helping as much as I could which was not too much I think. My dagger is of no use against bones and I do not have any magic what will affect it..... I hate undead

One of the rogues was captured in an entangle, the other rogue was no match for Jay. Now we have some questions.....